

Kevin Fream Bio

Kevin Fream, Divergent Entrepreneur and CEO of Matrixforce, is the creator of the Delta Method of streamlining technology, saving clients billions. He's the author of the #1 best-selling books Easy Prey, Streamlining Technology, and Cyber Prey, and has been a featured speaker at prestige speaking events at Harvard, Nasdaq, Coca-Cola, and Microsoft.

He also appears frequently on ABC, NBC, CBS, and FOX television news in an ongoing nationwide tour to warn the public about the perils of cybercrime and ransomware.

Kevin's life has been defined by physical handicaps and countless hardships. However, these adversities have become his advantage and the real sources of his success.

He was born with a rare condition called symbrachydactyly, which means that he had a lack of blood flow to his extremities, causing his hands to be deformed. With coke bottle glasses and a speech impediment, he was straight out of the movie Rocky. You know the scene where Paulie says to Adrian, "Listen, you don't have much of a body, so you gotta use your brain", well he could have been speaking directly to Kevin.

Kevin grew up in small-town Oklahoma, and after graduating high school as Valedictorian he received a scholarship to attend the University of Tulsa, where he earned a degree in Management Information Systems.

Soon after he'd landed his dream job working with Fortune 500 companies helping them do dramatically more in much less time, adversity struck again when his wife, Sherri had a massive stroke. During her nine-month recovery she had to relearn how to walk, talk, read, write, and take care of herself. Kevin literally had to do everything for her.

He honestly believes that tackling these physical limitations and life's tragedies, have made him even better at what he does. They've raised his understanding of people's limitations when dealing with technology and have given him a distinct level of compassion and awareness that his peers in managed IT services simply don't possess.

Most businesses owners are just trying to go the distance, but they have IT support motivated to work against them. That's why Kevin enjoys working with mid-sized financial and professional services firms and showing them how the Delta methodology reduces complexity and avoids risk.

PS: If you want to be the only choice for your clients and show them you're serious about protecting their privacy, or if you'd like Kevin Fream to speak at your event go to www.kevinfream.com.