

Kevin Fream Bio

America's Cyberist

"Most people don't understand the game they are playing and get frustrated in business, cyberspace, and life. I help you streamline your technology and have greater peace of mind."

Kevin Fream was born six weeks pre-mature with a rare condition causing his face and hands to be deformed. He knew harsh ridicule from an early age, but also knew his handicaps were nothing compared to others like his cousin Mark with muscular dystrophy. Fear was a constant until he learned courage to fight back and defeat bullies.

With coke bottle glasses and a speech impediment, he was straight out of the movie Rocky. You know the scene where Paulie says to Adrian, "Listen, you don't have much of a body, so you gotta use your brain", well he could have been speaking directly to Kevin. Growing up in small-town Oklahoma, he used his affinity for beating games and problem solving to become Valedictorian of his high school. With a scholarship to the Collins School of Business, he was one of the nation's first graduates in Management Information Systems.

Kevin's life has been defined by physical handicaps and countless hardships. However, these adversities have become his advantage and the real sources of his success. At 16, his father died and at 25 his wife Sherri had a massive stroke. Then at 38, his own engineers plotted to bankrupt him and destroy his reputation. By overcoming these inordinate tragedies, he believes he has a better awareness and understanding of people's business and technology challenges that his peers simply don't possess.

Today, Kevin Fream is CEO of Matrixforce and creator of the patent-pending Delta Method, saving clients billions. He is the author of the #1 best-selling books Easy Prey, Streamlining Technology, and Change Your Game along with being a featured speaker at Harvard, Nasdaq, Coca-Cola, and Microsoft. Kevin also appears frequently on ABC, NBC, CBS, and FOX news in an ongoing nationwide tour to warn the public about the perils of cybercrime and ransomware.

Most business owners are just trying to go the distance, but they have IT support motivated to work against them. That's why Kevin enjoys working with business leaders that understand cybersecurity can be a competitive advantage.

PS: If you want to Streamline Your Technology® to avoid loss and improve business while eliminating doubt, or if you'd like Kevin Fream to speak at your event then go to:

KevinFream.com.